

In July last year, while I was on a business trip to attend a conference in another town, I discovered my eyelid was inflamed with a small boil. I went to seek treatment at a nearby clinic. The doctor prescribed some medications for five days, after which if there was no improvement, then a surgery might be necessary.

After a week, my condition did not improve. I consulted another doctor in Ipoh. However, the doctor gave the same diagnosis as the first. The doctor prescribed another five days of medication but still there was no improvement. It makes me worry because I was afraid of surgery.

When I mentioned the situation to Master Wong, he suggested I try his massage therapy together with his medicated lotion. Alternatively, I agreed to his suggestion to avoid the surgery I dreaded so much.

In just a week my swollen eye subsided and within 2 weeks my eye was back to normal after using Master Wong's medicated lotion and massage therapy.
